

Interview Questions

1. Race – There are no job-related considerations that would justify asking an applicant a question based on race.
2. Religion - There are no job-related considerations that would justify asking about religious convictions, unless your organization is a religious institution, which may give preference to individuals of their own religion.
3. Gender – Generally, there are no appropriate questions based on the applicant's gender during the interview process. Specifically:
  - (a) Women are no longer protected under state wage/hour laws re: number of hours worked, lifting restrictions, etc.
  - (b) It is unlawful to deny a female applicant employment because she is pregnant, or planning to have a child at some future date.
  - (c) Questions on marital status, number of children, child care arrangements, etc. are not appropriate.
  - (d) Questions as to availability to work should be job-related: What hours can you work? What shift(s) can you work? Can you work on weekends and/or holidays?
4. Sexual Preference - Under certain state and municipal laws, there are no permissible questions regarding an applicant's sexual preferences.
5. Height and/or weight restrictions – These questions may support gender or national origin discrimination claims unless their relationship to specific job requirements can be demonstrated.
6. Age – Under the EEOC's Age Discrimination Interpretive Rules issued in 1981, as amended, a request for date of birth on the employment application is permissible, with an appropriate disclaimer shown. In practice, this is not asked on applications. Any recruiting effort that is age-biased such as "recent graduate", or any question during the interview process that deters employment because of age is unlawful. The Age Discrimination Act of 1967 bars discrimination against persons age 40 or over.
7. Arrest & Conviction Records – Questions relating to an applicant's arrest record are improper, while questions of an applicant's conviction record may be asked, if job related. The Equal Employment Opportunity Commission and many states prohibit use of arrest records for employment decisions because they are inherently biased against applicants in protected classes. The EEOC has issued a Revised Policy Statement covering the use of conviction records by employers in making employment decisions:
  - (a) The employer must establish a business necessity for use of an applicant's conviction record in its employment decision. In establishing business necessity, the employer must consider three factors to justify use of a conviction record:
    - (1) Nature and gravity of the offense for which convicted;

(2) Amount of time that has elapsed since the applicant's conviction and/or completion of sentence; and

(3) The nature of the job in question as it relates to the nature of the offense committed.

(b) The EEOC's Revised Policy Statement eliminated the existing requirement that employers consider the applicant's prior employment history along with rehabilitation efforts, if any. The Revised Policy Statement requires that the employer consider job-relatedness of the conviction, plus the lapse of time between the conviction and current job selection process.

8. National Origin – You may not ask an applicant where he/she was born, or where his/her parents were born. You may ask if the applicant is eligible to work in the United States.

9. Financial Status – An interviewer should not ask if the applicant owns or rents a home or car, or if wages have been previously garnished, unless financial considerations for the job in question exist. Any employer who relies on consumer credit reports in its employment process must comply with the Fair Credit Reporting Act of 1970 and the Consumer Credit Reporting Reform Act of 1996.

10. Military Record – You may not ask what type of discharge the applicant received from military service. You may ask whether or not the applicant served in the military, period of service, rank at time of discharge, and type of training and work experience received while in the service.

11. Disability – You may not ask whether or not the applicant has a particular disability. You may only ask whether or not the applicant can perform the duties of the job in question.
